- All assessment and feedback data. Parents can access all assessment data and feedback provided by the teacher, which helps them understand where their son excels and what areas need improvement.
- Reports and teacher feedback. Parents can access their son's reports and teachers feedback, which provides valuable insight into academic progress and performance.
- Timetables. Parents can view their son's timetable, including class schedules and events, which helps them plan and stay informed about the school schedule.
- Notices. Parents can view school notices and announcements, which keeps them informed about important school events and updates.
- Attendance and wellbeing information. Parents can view their son's attendance records and any information related to their child's wellbeing, which helps them stay informed about their son's overall health and wellbeing

SEQTA Engage allows parents to have more visibility and involvement in their son's education, which helps to improve communication and collaboration between parents, teachers and students.

The SEQTA Engage parent portal can be accessed from any device via the web portal. SEQTA Engage is also available in a free mobile app for iOS and Android.

SEQTA Engage mobile apps enhance the functionality of SEQTA's browser-based software by offering unique features to mobile devices, including push notifications, hassle-free authentication and fingerprint security.

New parents are emailed an onboarding guide that takes them through the setup of their SEQTA Engage accounts when their son commences school.

SEQTA LEARN (STUDENTS)

SEQTA Learn empowers students to take responsibility for their school experience, giving them 24/7 access to all the information and educational resources required for school. SEQTA Learn is accessible on any device on a web browser or via the free app, available in the Apple Store or Google Play Store.

Within SEQTA Learn, students can easily access their timetable, any current, future or past lesson information and assessments their teachers make visible to them, including any rubrics created by their teachers that provide students with a clear understanding of what success looks like.

Students can outline their expectations for formative or summative assessment tasks before attempting them, giving teachers critical information about the standard they aim for.

Teachers can release feedback to their students before marks, allowing them to reflect on their progress independently of their final mark or grade. They can then comment on this feedback and document their next learning steps.

This continuous reporting process ensures that students receive targeted and timely feedback, allowing them to understand how they're going, where they're going, and where to go next.

From the SEQTA Learn dashboard, students can:

- Be alerted, through notifications, to newly released feedback, grades, assessments, direct messages, school notices, and more
- Directly communicate with their teachers in a safe and secure environment
- Push notifications: never miss a thing; receive push notifications whenever there's something you need to know about
- View upcoming assessments and submit work
- View marked assessments and teacher feedback
- View and search courses, lessons and timetable
- View pastoral care/wellbeing information
- View unresolved absences
- Send and receive direct messages
